Excerpt: .when accounts had been kept correctly and showed actual original cost. In this case no complete cost records existed, and such as there were showed a partial cost of $2,398. Upon these partial records it was estimated that each car had cost from $3,100 to $3,200, leaving, on a basis of $6,000 for the new cars, $2,800 or $2,900 to be capitalized. Replacements, betterments, retirements and depreciation as relating to street railways were fully treated in the uniform system of accounts prescribed in 1908, and in accordance with these provisions, and the circumstances outlined above, it was decided to permit the capitalization of $2,800 per car on a basis of $6,000 cost per car for the-new cars. It should be stated that the relative seating capacities of the old and new cars was used as one test only because of the lack of data. Cost should be the real test wherever possible. The remainder of the amount applied for in this case it was proposed to devote to the reconstruction of a car-barn. This latter work was expected to cost $550,000 and consisted in the addition of two stories and a new roof. The company also owned a block of property used for the storage of cars. These premises the company had arranged to sell for $1,750,000 of which $50,000 had been paid. The sale, however, was not consummated as yet. The property was subject to a mortgage of $950,000, leaving $800,000 available if...
