The defender of Christianity, says Bp. Hurd, is not concerned to obviate every idle fancy that floats in the head of a visionary objector. Men have not the making of their Religion; but must take it for such as the Scripture represents it to be. And if we defend it on the footing of such representation, we do all that can be reasonably required of us. It is nothing to the purpose, what men may imagine to themselves concerning the rsarks and characters of a Divine Revelation: it is enough that there are such marks and characters in the Religion of Jesus, (whether more or fewer, whether the same or other, than we...
