Not illustrated. 1916 Excerpt: . . . has been cut off the board, as soon as the extra mileage amounts to 2, 600 per month, he should be again returned to the board. Question 2: in case it is required to use a fireman for an emergency trip or two as an engineer, who is entitled to do this work the oldest available fireman, who has no engineers seniority, or the fireman who is on the engineers seniority list and has been demoted on account of depression in business Ruling: Again we object to the word emergency. The question you ask relates to extra work, pure and simple. The oldest man. whether demoted or hired, ()Parts of this letter are decisions of disputes andjt is repeated as Decision 64. should be called and used for this work. Our understanding of an emergency is when a man is taken sick, or has been hurt, on the line of road and the fireman brings the train. into the terminal; or where a man at some outlying point on a branch where his is the only train and it is impossible to deadhead a man there to take his place, becomes sick or is hurt, and the fireman is required to bring the train in. These, in our opinion, constitute legitimate emergency cases. Runs taken out by a man who is laying off for a trip or two are not emergency runs at all. Yours fraternally, W. S. STONE, Grand Chief Engineer, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers....
