Picador. 1 Paperback(s), 2013. soft. Book Condition: New. (Winner of a National Outdoor Book Award and a finalist for the William Saroyan International Prize for Writing) When biologists Aaron Hirsh and Veronica Volny lead 12 college students to a remote fishing village on the Sea of Cortez (otherwise known as the Gulf of California and the Vermilion Sea), they encounter a bay of dazzling beauty and richness. But as the group conducts ecological and evolutionary studies in the area, listens to the stories of local villagers, and examines the journals of conquistadors and explorers, they realize that the sea is but a ghost of what it once was. In his wonderfully literary account, Hirsh give us a stirring meditation on our changing relationships with nature, and a new way to see our roles in the path ahead."I can't remember the last time I read a science book with such elegant writing, and Hirsh's travelogue has easygoing philosophical weight as well."Smithsonian"A person who is both a fine scientist and a brilliant writer is a rare phenomenon, but that describes Aaron Hirsh. In the first few pages of Telling Our Way to the Sea, you learn about the fascinating responses of Isostichopus fuscus to predators. After that, you won't be able to put the book down. A literary triumph."Paul R. Erlich 394.
